Last summer

1 Complete the e-mail message with the correct form of the verbs in the box.

- ☐ be ☐ buy ☐ have ☐ see ☐ watch
☐ break ☒ go ☐ play ☐ stay ☐ write

Hi, Jeff!

Did you have a good summer vacation? You went mountain climbing, right? How _____ your trip? Please _____ me a message and tell me.

I didn't go away this summer. I just _____ home. I _____ a lot of my friends, and we _____ DVDs. One day, while I _____ soccer, I _____ my watch. I _____ a new one the next day.

I hope you _____ a great vacation. See you at school!

Your friend,
Chris

2 Read the text. Then number the pictures in the correct order.

I'm Kenny Morton. I went to tennis camp with my friends last summer. We got up at 6:00 a.m. every day. That was OK because we also went to bed early. We practiced tennis all the time. At the end of the summer, my best friend, Teddy, was practicing when he fell and broke his arm. That was really too bad. We had a competition on the last day, and I won a prize! After camp was over, I had a lot of summer homework to do. Now I'm back at school.

a. _____ b. _____ c. _____ / _____ d. _____ e. _____ f. _____

3 Look at the information in Part 2 again. Write questions and answers about Kenny.

UNIT 1

1 Read the article quickly. What's the name of Jason's online store?

Pencil Bugs

When Jason O'Neill was only nine years old, he started to make fun things to put on the top of pencils. He called them Pencil Bugs, and he decided to sell them. Jason and his parents started making the Pencil Bugs, and Jason's mother created a Web site for the business. The Pencil Bugs are all different. Each one has a name and a birthday.

When Jason was 12, people were still buying Pencil Bugs. Jason wanted to sell more things, so he opened an online store called Pencil Bugs — Café Press. Now people from all over the U.S. can buy T-shirts, hats, and many other things with the Pencil Bug pictures on them. Luckily for Jason and his family, the business is doing very well. Pencil Bugs pencil tops are still the best-loved items.

UNIT 2

1 Read the article quickly. Will tests in the future be the same as tests today?

Schools of the Future

by Richard Morton

Some people predict that schools in the future will be different from schools today. How will they be different? First, they'll be smaller. Many schools will have only about 100 students.

Second, schools probably won't have different grades — students of different ages will be in the same grade. Students will also choose the subjects they want to study, and they'll work together on projects. They'll use computers to work with students around the world. Students will create virtual cities and countries and solve problems in them. They will study a lot of languages, too.

Tests will be very different, too. To pass them, students won't only answer questions — they will have to do other things. For a science test, a student might have to make a robot. For a history test, a student might create a museum exhibit. A language arts test might give students a headline, and ask them to write an article about it on the computer.

Schools in the future won't be easier than schools today, but one thing is certain: They will be more exciting!

2 Complete the sentences with the words in the box.

☐ ages ☐ certain ☐ headline ☐ predict ☒ virtual

1. With a computer, you can go on a virtual tour of London.
2. Exercise is good for people of all _____. Children, teens, and adults all need it.
3. When I saw the name of our school in a front-page _____, I bought the newspaper.
4. Do you believe people can _____ the future?
5. I wasn't _____ about the answer to that test question, but I knew the others.

3 Read the article in Part 1 slowly. What does Richard Morton predict about schools of the future? Write T (True) or F (False). Then correct the false statements.

1. Morton believes that schools in the future will be ^{smaller} bigger. F
2. Students of different ages will be in the same grade. _____
3. Students will use computers to work with teachers around the world. _____

1 Read the blog quickly. Check (✓) the correct ending to the statement.

You should ask your parents for permission when they're:

- ☐ asking you questions. ☐ not busy. ☐ doing chores.

How to Ask for Permission

There's a big party tomorrow night. You made fuzzy plans to go with your friends, but you need your parents' permission before you can make firm plans. How do you ask for permission? Here's some advice:

1. Before you ask, do your homework and your chores. If you don't, your parents might tell you to stay home and finish them.
2. Choose a convenient time to ask them. Don't ask them when they're busy.
3. When you ask for permission, be sure to say please.
4. Expect some questions from them. They'll probably ask things like "Where's the party?" "How are you going to get there?" "What time will you get home?" Have your answers ready.
5. Finally, if they say no, try to understand. Remember, if your parents say no, it's probably because they want you to stay safe.

2 Complete the sentences with the words in the box.

UNIT 6

1 Read the Web site quickly. What's in a letterbox?

Letterboxing

Have you ever wanted to have a big adventure without taking a big risk? Try letterboxing. It's really exciting.

Letterboxing is like hiking and exploring – with a special challenge. The challenge starts when someone creates a letterbox – a small plastic box with a little notebook in it. The person hides the letterbox in a park, a forest, a city, or some other place. Next, the person writes directions to the box and puts the directions on the Internet. Then letterboxers use the directions to try to find the letterbox.

People who have never gone letterboxing should try it once. It's really fun! It might not be as exciting as skydiving or rock climbing, but it's a great activity. It's an excellent mental and physical challenge. And it's a thrilling feeling to open a letterbox and find out that no one else has discovered it yet!

2 Complete the sentences with the words in the box.

1 Read the article quickly. Who has a job? Check (✓) the correct answer(s).

☐ Carlos ☐ Sherry ☐ Katie

Lazy teens? No way!

Are teens today lazier than teens in past generations? No way! Between school, homework, chores, and part-time jobs the average teen works over 50 hours a week. Read what these hardworking teens say about jobs and their busy lives.

Carlos Fuentes, 17: I really like my job. I'd rather work than hang out at home or the mall. Working is the best way to learn job skills. And I like the money. I'm saving for college because the college I want to go to is the most expensive college in my city.

Sherry Nelson, 16: My parents think I'm too young to have a part-time job. They think a job isn't as important as school. They say the most important thing is studying and getting good grades, and I agree. I play sports after school and do a lot of chores at home, so I really don't have time for a job.

Katie Wu, 17: Doing community work as a volunteer can give you valuable and memorable experiences. When I'm at work, I meet a lot of different people and I have to use my time well. Work isn't as difficult as school, and I like them both.

1 Read the Web site quickly. Whose idea do you think is best?

Help Fight World Hunger

What would you do if you wanted to help hungry people in the world but you didn't have billions of dollars? We asked some students for their ideas.

Timothy: If a friend would join me, I'd volunteer with an organization or foundation that works to fight world hunger. Maybe we could travel to another country to help people. It would be a good education about other countries for us, too.

Gwen: I would get photographs of children who don't have enough to eat. I would put the photos on a Web site with this question: What would you do if these children were yours? I would also list the names of organizations that help fight world hunger. Then I would send the link for the Web site to people and ask them to donate money to help hungry children.

Ray: I'd write a letter to a celebrity. In the letter, I'd ask the celebrity to come and talk at our school. I'd ask all of the students in our school to sign the letter. People would pay money to go to the talk, and we would use the money to help fight hunger.

These are great ideas – but send us yours! What could you do to help hungry people?
